

Call For Papers – Cornell Quarterly.

The CQ announces two new manuscript types - Managerial Perspectives and Replication/Validation papers along with Original Research articles and shorter Research Notes!

The primary objective of the Cornell Quarterly is to publish articles that provide timely and actionable prescription for hospitality management research and practice. Specifically, we aim to publish empirical, conceptual, and case study papers that provide new insights about important industry challenges and issues. The content will address a broad range of topics that are relevant to service firms across industry segments (hospitality, travel, tourism, and related contexts) including strategic management, human resources, marketing, finance, real estate, accounting, operational management, facilities and design, information systems and technology, communications, travel and tourism, and general management. Original Research articles and shorter Research Notes will be clearly grounded within an appropriate conceptual foundation, and authors will be able to demonstrate how the current paper extends that which we already know about the focal topic. Only methodologically rigorous work will be considered, and all submissions must present actionable and prescriptive insights that can be used to guide real-world decision-making. Additionally, concise, and rigorous Replication/Validation articles will be considered on a limited basis. Lastly, the journal also welcomes Managerial Perspectives, shorter well-grounded and empirically sound articles that have immediate impacts on the practice of service firms.

Submit Papers:

<https://journals.sagepub.com/author-instructions/CQX>

Additionally, in an effort to expedite the review process along with increasing the representativeness, trustworthiness, and robustness of findings the CQ has added the option for Original Research and Research to be pre-registered (submission guidelines are provided at: <https://www.sagepub.com/registered-reports>). While Pre-registration does not guarantee acceptance, it does ensure a smooth and expediated review process.

If you have any questions, please reach out:

Chris K Anderson,
Professor
Editor Cornell Quarterly
cka9@cornell.edu